INDUSTRY TYPES

SteelCo Buildings, Inc. is a construction company located in Covington, Georgia managing construction projects in the industrial, commercial, agricultural, worship, institutional, recreational, and specialty market segments. We manage construction projects in the industrial, commercial, agricultural, worship, institutional, recreational, and specialty market segments. SteelCo works hard to see its clients through every stage of construction, from conceptual planning to the final walk through. Whether you want to bring an entrepreneurial edge to your business, construct a school as advanced as your progressive teaching methods, raise a church that will inspire new devotion in your congregation, or fulfill any other purpose that calls for design imagination and construction skill above and beyond the ordinary, bring your vision to the visionaries at SteelCo, and let us bring that vision to life. When it's a question of custom design and building, SteelCo is your answer.

FOUNDATION

The foundation of our company lies in its reputation for success. Much of the credit to that success is due to our core values that SteelCo has upheld since its opening day. Those values are discipline, trust, honesty, and integrity. Those values are not just words, but beliefs, and the reason why SteelCo is such a strong company and only getting stronger. Our goal at SteelCo is to become the most respected general contractor in the state of Georgia. The only way to achieve that goal is to provide unmatched products, supported by unmatched service, on an “every day, every customer” basis. We treat every customer with consistent professionalism, respect and pride. It is a brand of service that is a solid framework for success—uniquely superior, and uniquely SteelCo.

"I would like to say on the behalf of our congregation and members of our church board; that we are very pleased with your performance during the construction phase of our current facility. As time has gone by, the quality of your work has proven that you were the proper source for our construction needs.

From the very beginning with the initial introduction of your team, to the very end of the project; we were treated with the utmost respect and courtesy. Also every commitment that you made to us in the process of planning and building were completed, as told, there wasn't any surprises or lack of detail thereof. Truly it can be said, that your word is your bond that is something that so many have forgotten in these times. We are very thankful for businesses that have not lost that old time tradition of hard work, honest rapport, and quality in the minutest detail of construction.

I would highly recommend your firm to any organization that values these qualities in a business relationship. Thank you again for all that you have done to make our church facility the beautiful edifice that it is today."
